What Does Therapeutic-Grade Mean?

Lamp Aire only uses the highest quality essential oils, known as therapeutic or medicinal grade oils. This is the foundation of medicinal aromatherapy.

When it comes to your health, the quality of your essential oils is everything! If you use poor-quality oil, you'll get poor-quality results - at best.

With reference to true aromatherapy, therapeutic-grade refers to essential oils that are both complete in their chemical constituents and kinetically alive, able to affect the human body, restoring balance and normal function to weak body systems.

A truly high-quality, therapeutic-grade essential oil will be noted for three properties:

Its fragrance: Research has shown that the actions of fragrance (which are produced by the combinations of aromatic compounds found in essential oils) on the sense of smell can exert powerful effects on the brain-especially on the hypothalamus (the hormone command center of the body) and the limbic system (the seat of emotions).

Its chemistry: Essential oils are very complex. Besides containing carbohydrates, proteins and fats, vitamins and minerals, and glycosides, even a fairly simple essential oil may contain anywhere from 80 to 300 different chemical constituents, or aromatic molecules. An essential oil like lavender is far more complex.

Its frequency: Therapeutic-grade essential oils are kinetically alive with vibratory energy. Because of this, experts agree that a key element in determining the effectiveness of health products is how "alive" they are, or by how much organic energy remains after natural substances have been processed into product form. Especially in terms of essential oils, they need to have active coenzymes, minerals and oxygenating molecules intact from processing, because this frequency, or the kinetic vibrations, play a key role in their effectiveness as therapeutic agents.

The problem is: Most essential oil producers distill their oils more for perfume or flavoring and, as a result, take shortcuts in their production methods, or the oils are contaminated with chemicals-either of which effectively render the oils inert (dead). They are not kinetically alive enough to vibrate at frequencies that affect the human body, restoring balance and normal function to weak body systems.

A synergistic blend tested in the forests of Canada to combat those pesky mosquitos. 100% Pure Essential Oils are safe to breathe. Apply directly on skin to all areas of body that are prone to mosquito bites. Great for adults, children, and even the family dog. One has a minty fragrance. The other has a woody fragrance. Note: Lavender and Secret Forest can also be used as mosquito repellants. Since everyone's body chemistry is different, and mosquitos seem to be really attracted to one person and not to the person sitting next to them, try all four and see which works best with your own body chemistry.

The fragrancing lamp is the perfect way to purify and cleanse the air using Lamp Aire's fuels made with 100% pure therapeutic-grade essential oils.
